

Henry Wrinkles faces public on a T-Shirt

Linda Dickinson, owner of Dickinson Realty, was proud to support PAWS humane educator "Henry Wrinkles" by purchasing one of his T-Shirts with the emblem "The Henry Wrinkles Foundation". The foundation, founded by PAWS volunteer Susan Boyd, is part of PAWS Community Imprints which develops and implements reading program in the local community to encourage children to learn first.

Last year, Pam Lackey's 1st grade class at Greene County Tech Primary was involved in the program and the children actually wrote a short story and put together a slide show of "Henry's First Day of School", the children presented their work at the award ceremony of the Endowment Foundation of Greene County, which gave PAWS a grant to keep the program going. This year, students at Paragould Junior High will be involved in the program, Today, "Henry" will be attending the pep rally at the junior high school arriving in style in his custom "Hummer" as a special treat for the students.

Since being founded in 1998, the PAWS shelter has placed over three thousand animals into loving homes and has provided a safe-haven for homeless pets. If you are interested in adopting a pet see our pets online at www.pawsparagould.org or come to the shelter to see your tax-deductible donations at work.
